

Writer's Wednesday!

Week Four: Summer Journal

Miss Rayborn would like to encourage all of you to keep a Summer Journal! It will go a long way to keeping you on track with your writing, language, and reading skills. Set aside time each day to write in your journal! It can be about what you did that day, what you wish you had done that day, dreams for the future, what you ate for dinner, sports that you played, crafts that you made, etc. Anything goes! The important thing is that you are practicing your writing skills (constructing sentences, and learning how to express yourself), while having fun with it! I also encourage you to draw, doodle, and paste photos or important papers (ex. ticket stubs) inside as well! Let this be a compilation of your memories for the summer of 2020! I wish all of you the very best and hope that you have a safe and wonderful summer!
