JHS moves up in Newsweek rankings

Each year, Newsweek picks the best high schools in the country based on how hard school staffs work to challenge students with advanced placement college-level courses and tests. Just over 1600 schools-only six percent of all the public schools in the U.S.-made the list.

For the 6th consecutive year, Jackson High School made the list, moving up from 1,249 on last year's list to 1,046 this year. Only one other Stark County high school, (Hoover, North Canton), made the list.

Thank you, anonymous donor

In honor of Teacher Appreciation Week, each and every person who works at Jackson Local Schools received a beautifully designed tee-shirt from an anonymous community member. The donor said he/she wanted to show appreciation to ALL staff for their hard work and dedication to the students of Jackson Local Schools. The fabulous shirt design incorporated accomplishments from each school building for the 2009-2010 school year. Our staff was not only thrilled to receive the gift of appreciation, and have been wearing them proudly,

Top 25 students honor teachers who inspired, cared, demanded their hest
At the end of each school year, Jackson High School's top 25 students are invited to honor a teacher who made a difference in their lives. Some students were impressed by the teacher who saw their potential and lifted them to it. Others were impressed by their teacher's humor, intellect, or ability to communicate. Still others were moved by the teacher who simply cared about them on a daily basis or during a time of personal crisis.

JHS writers take top spots in DAR contest

The Daughters of the American Revolution sponsor an annual writing contest officially known as the Junior American Citizens Contest. This year's theme was America, Land of the Free and Home of the Brave. Any student may enter through a local chapter; Jackson's two winning students, Joelle George and Allison Antram, entered through the Canton Chapter and won at the local level. Both girls progressed to state level and placed there as well. This is Allison's second victory, as she entered last year and won a national award in her division.
"I am always excited when students want to pursue writing outside of the school venue. Both girls are excellent creative writers, and I hope this will encourage them to pursue careers in writing," said their writing coach Kim Germano.

Environmental Home Design

The Building Industry Association and the Repository challenged Stark County high school students to design and build models of homes with green technology, complete with elevations, foundation plans, landscape, and a list of energy-efficient features. Greg Marchand was one of the county's three winners, placing second. He plans to attend Wright State University where he will study engineering. "A lot of problem solving went into this project," Greg said.

Also entering the contest, was Julian Mueller. Although he did not place, his mechanical drawing teacher, Keith Kohmann said, "Julian demonstrated a unique perspective, using Legos to square the foundation, just like an actual home would be built. He though outside the box."

Keith Kohmann's Mechanical Drawing II students with two of the many home models that were built.
"I learned a lot from this project, and I feel I can carry what I learned into real-life situations," said Julian.

Abby Zalenski, a JHS 9th grader, raised enough money to build a school in the Vietnam village of Hoa Lac. Abby began her fund-raising campaign in 8th grade, and reached her goal in just over one year by appealing to private foundations, Rotary groups in District 6650, and the Vietnam Children's Fund.

Abby's family traveled to Vietnam in March to dedicate sister, Carly, built in 2008.
"The students at Carly's school still had the backpacks we gave them two years ago," said a very impressed Abby. "This has given me so much perspective on life. I can see beyond myself to the bigger picture, and I don't feel nearly as materialistic as I once did. It was amazing to see how happy the Vietnamese children are with how little they have. the school. They took a backpacks filled with school supplies for each of the school's 500 students. Abby raised funds for the backpacks by writing each Vietnamese student's name on a paper doll cut-out and selling them for $$ 5$ each at JHS.

While in country, the Zalenski family made a stop at another school- the one Abby's older

"We don't want to stop now, and we have a younger cousins who also like to help us, so this won't be the last of Kids Building Hope (the non-profit organization founded by Abby and Carly for the purpose of building the schools). Education is one of the most fundamental and important things you can give a kid," Abby said.

JHS math students up to the challenge

The Stark County High School Mathematics Challenge is held annually at Kent State, Stark Campus. The event, hosted by Kent Stark Math Department and Math Club, is open to students from all Stark County high schools. This year, the JHS team finished 2nd, and Sam Johnson was the individual winner. The team's top scorers were Emily Cavalier, Derrick James, Sam Johnson, Mason Rauchenstein, and Brandon Liebau. Other contributing team members were Aaron Manos, Joy Sobowale, Heather Tsai, Khailing Neoh, and Heath Reichenbach.

Building unity in our community

Under the direction of teacher Brian Clevenger, Construction Technology classes donated all of the labor to build a $32^{\prime} \times$ 62 ' pole barn for the Jackson Parks Department (pictured), the second in two years. In addition, the students built dugouts for the baseball team at the freshman field behind the high school. "We are adding worth to the township at the same time that our students are getting a great education through real life experience. It's truly a win-win for the students and the township," said Mr. Clevenger.

headmasters from the Chinese school At that time, the heads of both schools signed a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) to continue the partnership. By the terms of the MOU, the two schools will work on teacher and students visits and exchanges every other school year. What this means for our district is:

- Teachers from Jiaozhou Number One H.S. to visit JHS in September of 2010.
- Jackson High School teachers to visit Jiaozhou Number One H.S. In Sept./ Oct. 2010
- Jiaozhou High School students visit JHS for a week in mid-September
- A trip to Qingdao for Jackson High School students to be planned for June 2011.
- Jackson will host several international students from Jiaozhou for a year of study beginning next school year. We are starting to search for host families. There will be modest compensation for host families to off-set expenses.
- In the future, the two schools will arrange for Jackson students to travel to China in the summer for extended Chinese language study (up to 8 weeks) or a full year of study at Jiaozhou Number One High School.

Studying national security languages abroad

 Out of more than 1500 semi-finalists, JHS senior Andi Adams and JHS junior Anna Pickard were selected to receive NSLI-Y (National Security Language Initiative for Youth) scholarships to study abroad. Andrea will study Chinese in China this summer for seven weeks, and Anna will study Arabic in Egypt for 10 months before returning the USA to finish her senior year at JHS. Both girls are excited about these global adventures in learning. The scholarships are fully funded by the US State Department and administered by iEARN (The International Educational and Resource Network).

Marine Biology students make expedition to Bahamian island

The Jackson-Hoover Marine Biology program took 22 students from classroom to seaside. Students and teachers meet for 17 weeks from December to April on Wednesday evenings from 6-9 PM. The program is a collaboration between Jackson and Hoover but also accepts students from Lake, Glenoak, Louisville, and McKinley. The program is taught by Margaret Peters, Lee Ann Kalkhoff, Dave Miller, school nurse Lori Fisher from Jackson, and Lynette Rice, Steve Wood, and Sarah Covington from Hoover. Topics range from geology of the Bahamas and chemistry of seawater, to information on sea organisms from plankton to sharks. The students learn how to identify all organisms in the Bahamas and are tested on their knowledge before making a field expedition to Andros

The entourage stays in rustic cabins on the beach at Forfar Field Station. It is the largest island of the Bahamas but the least populated. They go on snorkel (and optional scuba) trips to search for and identify each of the plants and animals they learned about in class. Students also go on invertebrate walks on the beach and learn about the culture by interacting with local Bahamian legends such as Omelia Marshall (a highly acknowledged medicine woman who grows and uses nearly 100 indigenous plants medicinally) and Henry Wallace (a famous wood carver whose work has been displayed across the USA and in the Smithsonian).
The class is taught at a student-paid fee of $$ 1800$, which includes the classroom instruction alternating between Hoover High and JHS, and transportation, lodging and food while on the trip. Students receive high school credit for the course.

Senior Community Service Day: Students giving back

The annual Senior Community Service Day was held again in May as 366 seniors volunteered at 66 job sites throughout the community. Jackson has participated in this annual event for nearly 20 years.

The Board of Education, administration and faculty are committed to the ideal that in the process of completing twelve years of education, students become responsive to community needs. Senior Community Service Day allows students the opportunity to give something back to the community that has provided them with outstanding educational and social experiences.

Jayme Woods(left) and Cheyenne Fisher. "I think she saved my life." Jayme Woods and Cheyenne Fisher are lunch buddies. One day, at lunch, while Cheyenne was eating a barbecued rib sandwich, she grabbed her throat and tried to cough. She could not breathe in and could not breathe out. Her friend Jayme was puzzled at first, then flew into action, applying the Heimlich Maneuver to Cheyenne.
Both girls expressed their surprise at how quickly the food "popped out" of Cheyenne's throat.
"It was scary," Cheyenne said. "I think she saved my life."
"I never practiced it (Heimlich Maneuver), but my mom is a fitness trainer and she taught me what to do," Jayme said. p delivered test-taking tips for the 6th grade student body. Skits included music video awards like the Grammys, a silly game of Jeopardy, a "Dress for Success" spoof, and a cheerleading competition with the theme, "We Believed, We Achieved," to parallel the recent Jackson basketball state championship. Cheers included, "I believed, I achieved, go for the gold, and purple power."

JMMS students win Law Day Poster Contest
Law Day is a national day in May set aside to celebrate the rule of law, underscoring how law and the legal process have contributed to the freedoms that all Americans share. The Stark County Bar Association sponsors a variety of events, including a poster contest, in which JMMS Social Studies students often participate. This year, Kajal Parbhoo took first place. Madyson Gabriele took second, and Jayme Cartia took third place. They were honored with cash awards at a luncheon held at the McKinley Grand Hotel. Many area judges, attorneys, and Law Day committee members attended.

Irau Soldier visits her JMMS student pen pals

Spc. Laura Kline, a gunner with the 204 MP Company and sister of JMMS Social Studies teacher Sarah Michel, took time on her leave to visit the JMMS students who had written to her while she served for the past 12 months in Iraq. Ms. Kline brought the students a post-Saddam Iraq flag embroidered with thanks and signed by soldiers in her unit. She also brought a slide show to teach the students about the country and some of the ways her unit was able to serve. As she thanked the students for the "30 boxes" of supplies and goodies that were sent to her, Mrs. Michel corrected, "It was only 17 boxes," but Ms. Kline would not have it. She was sure it must have been 30 boxes. She said the kids sent so much gum that some soldiers used it to quit smoking. Before departing, Ms. Kline taught the students to march to cadence outside on the school grounds. "Sound-off; 1-2; Sound-off; 3-4; 1-2-3-4; 1-2-3-4." After the students learned to form straight lines and sound off, Ms. Kline had them march to a Jodie Call cadence written by their teacher. "lackson Bears are really cool. Other schools just make me drool. History, science, math books too. Let's play soccer, how "bout you?"

Girl Scouts mark passage with bridging ceremony

The Girl Scouts of North Eastern Ohio Jackson Service Unit hosted a Girl Scout Bridging Ceremony in May at the Scenic Ridge Commons in Jackson Township.
Bridging is an important transition in a Girl Scout's life. It is a defining moment when a girl becomes aware of her achievements and is ready for new adventures and responsibilities. A combined group of 32 Daisy, Brownie, and Junior scouts celebrated this change as they moved from one level of scouting to the next higher level. Each girl crossed over a bridge, symbolically traveling from one stage of Girl Scouting to another, where they were welcomed by older sister Scouts.
Karen Kohmann, troop leader and Special Events Director for Jackson Girl Scouts, shared this during the ceremony, "Today marks a milestone in your lives as Girl Scouts and is a celebration of progress for both you and your leaders. It is a joyful journey we are following together; one of friendship, working together, playing together and growing together. From the experienced Senior Scout to the smallest Daisy, we travel together in sisterhood. You have now moved from one level of girl scouting to another. Congratulations."

The Alumni Association wants to see YOU in this picture next year

Members of The Jackson High School Alumni Association invite the public to join the fun next school year. To conclude their year of work, the group gathered at the Bear's Den restaurant for an evening of great food, fond memories, and wonderful student entertainment. The evening started with an invocation delivered by classmate Sebia Crum followed by the singing of Jackson's Alma Mater led by classmate Jennifer Jones. The JHS culinary students served a delicious lasagna and breaded chicken meal to approximately 40 alumni/spouses/guests including Jackson Township Trustee/classmate Bill Burger. A 2010 senior class member Ethan Ash performed beautiful violin music for the group, then president/classmate Tom Lockard held a short meeting encouraging attendees to grow the Alumni Association membership. Treasurer/classmate Pinkey Streiber gave a financial report. All attendees joined in congratulating classmates Jim and Eleanor Scott for their years of service and dedication to the Association as they retire from their Middle School concession stand leadership duties. The concession stand sales have raised thousands of dollars for the Association's scholarship fund which has awarded many graduates over the years. To join or learn more about this fine organization and be a part of the excellence, please contact president Tom Lockard at Tlockard@neo.rr.com. There is no need to be a Jackson graduate.

Move over Thomas Edison: Amherst kids are the future

After Amherst 4th grade students studied the Scientific Method, they created inventions of their own to solve a problem of their choosing. "The inventions were very creative. I am sure that we have some future inventors," said teacher Lora Finn. Although the inventions did not have to work, the process helps students to solve problems creatively in a scientific way. The Invention Convention drew crowds of parents and schoolmates as the young inventors showed and explained the merits of their glorious gadgets.

Bear Buck Auction

As part of Amherst 5th graders' real-life-lessons, students learned to write business letters. They mailed the letters to local businesses to request donation items for their year-end Bear Buck Auction. The students earn Bear Bucks throughout the school year for classroom participation, following school rules, completing homework, and for being responsible, respectful, and caring. At the end of the year, students use their math, money management, and discernment skills to bid on the over 100 items donated buy our generous business community, parents, and teaching staff.

also donated three corn hole sets which the 5th graders decorated and placed in the silent auction held for parents during the walk. Eady Seaman of Terra Potta aided the silent auction effort by donating 30 pieces of pottery which younger students decorated with their fingerprints and their names. To encourage students to gather sponsorships, the Wulff family (Wulff Enterprises) and Sheelah Westerbeck donated student prizes for participation.
This year's effort raised $$ 7,800$, enough to add another playground piece, resurface and expand the existing blacktop, and refresh the playground mulch. The PTO also gave music teacher and gym teacher a monetary contributions to update their classroom materials. ## Sauder celebrates 40 years of helping the earth

To celebration our nation's 40th Earth Day, Sauder school counselor Amy Cornell launched "Go Green" week of activities: Monday - conserve electricity day Tuesday - plants and animals day Wednesday - nature day

Thursday - reduce, reuse, recycle day Friday - go green day (wear green). The purpose of Go Green Week was to help students, teachers and families incorporate earth care into their lives and to empower students in ways they can make a difference.
Teachers held some of their classes outside on the green earth and made art projects from recycled materials. They also collected donations for the Sanders Wildlife Center.

Fiesta Day

Sauder 1st graders Madison Hart (left) and Shaylyn Stonkus don Mexican hats for Fiesta Day. Students learned about Mexican culture, learned to speak a few Spanish words, and finished with a musical celebration in the gymnasium, playing maracas, singing, and dancing.

Partnering via rockets
After a unit on Astronomy and Newton's Laws of Motion, JMMS 8th graders built water rockets from two-liter pop bottles and construction paper. JMMS science teacher Lyndsay Dimengo arranged to have her student rocket scientists teach the principals to Sauder 5th graders and allow the younger students to launch the rockets with help from the older students. As a conclusion, to the delight of all, 8th grader Matt Lowry launched his own multi-stage rocket $250^{\prime}$ in the air using solid engine fuel.

Strausser's hadge company profits feed local hungry

To learn how a business works, Strausser Elementary 4th graders formed a company that designed, produced, marketed and sold campaign button-style badges. The company, called Federal Badge Incorporated, used its profits to purchase food and toiletries for the Canton Calvary Mission (CCM) whose programs include a food pantry, a Wednesday hot lunch, a Saturday evening meal, after school snacks for children, and a summer feeding program for children 1-18.

This year, the company raised $$ 660$. The teachers asked students if they'd like to keep a portion of the profits and throw an ice cream party for themselves. The unanimous answer was, "No." Every Strausser 4th grader voted to forego the party in favor of purchasing an extra $$ 200$ worth of food for CCM. "We are all so proud of these students," said teacher Bill Hayden.

Accepting the donation for CCM was its executive director Marie Seneften-Deitz. Mrs. Deitz was overwhelmed with gratitude when she saw the four cafeteria tables filled with food and supplies. She told the students that over 12 million American children are food insecure.
"This food will fill our pantry," Mrs. Deitz said, and tomorrow, some of it will be used to feed 175 local families." The sagging economy has more than doubled the CCM numbers. Five years ago, CCM came to the aid of 4,326 households (11,620 people). In 2009, CCM aided 7,893 households (26,571 people).

Adopting the Strausser rock
Each spring, the Strausser student body in grades 1-5 take to their school yard to pull weeds and tidy the grounds. In addition, this year, Mrs. McMullin's 5th graders landscaped the big rock bed with perennials brought in from their teacher's home garden. Later, the high school students delivered and spread mulch over the cleaned beds.

Diamond Club continues annual tradition - honoring alumni

On May 7, the Jackson Diamond Club honored 14 former players in a tradition begun last year. The former players took the field with the 2010 team for introductions and commemorative photo before the Polar Bears took on Kent Roosevelt in a twilight double header. The Diamond Club acknowledged and thanked the alumni players who helped build the foundation for Jackson's successful program. The team is shooting for its 4th consecutive Federal League title. ## JHS Tri-M filips flap jacks for kids

The 51 JHS students of Tri-M Music Honor Society teamed up with Giant Eagle on the Strip, Gabe's Meat and Deli, Smith's Dairy, Dinner Plans and Chick-fil-A to sponsor a pancake breakfast that raised nearly $$ 2,000$ for Akron Children's Hospital. Tri-M is the international honor society recognizing high school music students for their musical ability, academic excellence, school involvement, and community service.

JHS raises 130,000 Pennies for Peace

The JHS junior English classes read the bestselling book Three Cups of Tea by Greg Mortenson who builds schools in Pakistan and Afghanistan because he believes that education is the best way to fight terrorism. As a part of the unit, the students participated in Mortenson's program Pennies for Peace, collecting $$ 1,300$ in spare change from staff, classmates, family, and friends to send to the schools in Pakistan and Afghanistan. Some students also conducted a letter writing campaign to local businesses for contributions. In addition, about 130 students traveled to see Mr. Mortenson in person when he spoke at Mount Union College in March. He believes that while a penny in the USA is virtually worthless, in impoverished countries a penny buys a pencil and opens the door to literacy. As of 2009, Mortenson has established or significantly supports 131 schools in rural and often volatile regions of Pakistan and Afghanistan, which provide education to over 58,000 children, including 44,000 girls, where few education opportunities existed before.

Teachers complete 2 half marathons

JMMS teachers Ramey Mason, Susan Ray, and Diana Rankin completed their second half marathon in May and are thinking about running a full marathon in the fall. It began on a whim last May when fellow teacher Seana Carter challenged the group to run the Nationwide Half Marathon in Columbus in October.
"Although we all thought it would be awesome to do, we worried that we wouldn't be able to achieve that goal. Some of us had fallen out of our work-out routines and weren't sure we had it in us to run for 13.1 miles," said Mrs.
 Rankin. None of them had ever run more than five miles.

The foursome spent the next four months following Hal Higdon's half marathon training program for novice runners, running three days a week, cross training, biking, and lifting weights.

On race day, huddled with 20,000 strangers on a frigid October morning the women were ready. Soon, they accomplished their goal, running for the entire 13.1 miles. "After that we were bitten by the race bug," Mrs. Rankin said.

Off to the Capital City Half Marathon in Columbus on May 1. Training for this one was much more difficult. Running outside in the dark, in the cold and in the snow was not as pleasant as their summer and fall runs. Staying motivated through flu season and shin splints was also difficult.
Although Mrs. Carter had to back out of the race, Ramey, Susan, and Rankin made it to the race which began under a fine mist and turned into a steady downpour by mile seven. "We were drenched by the end, but happy that we had completed our second half marathon," Mrs. Rankin said

The four women are now contemplating the Akron full marathon in September although no commitment has been made.
"This was a life changing experience for all of us. We all had run before, but we had never pushed ourselves as much as we pushed ourselves for this. We proved to ourselves that we could do that which we thought was impossible," Mrs. Rankin said.

Exploring the role of the National Guard

Sgt. Michael Russ of the Ohio National Guard and the National Guard's Heritage Outreach Program talked to the JHS American History Students about the Guard's role in war time, especially WW II. He also shared many soldier artifacts from WWI, WWII and today and compared soldier uniforms from each era. Sgt. Russ has been deployed twice, to Egypt and Iraq.

Sgt. Russ and student Kevin Deagan display two uniforms.
